How can a man get away with a name like Minot St. Clair as an anchor?

Last call for the turkey. But there will be several calls after him tomorrow.

It may become necessary, as hinted, to teach the use of firearms in our public schools.

The doctors will be doing business at the old stand beginning from mid-afternoon tomorrow.

Barre granite men don't want to have the corners knocked off their monuments any more than off their business.

Asks the Boston Transcript: "Is Vermont losing her sweetness?" Heaven forbid! How should we get along without them?

Here they are, beginning to talk about Christmas, still a month ahead. But the merchants are doing a little acting about it on the sly.

To show how effectually President Eliot dominates Harvard university, ask a Harvard student if the institution will have a football team next fall.

Down in Massachusetts they can't let District Attorney Moran, "once a candidate for governor," go a-courting without heralding the news broadcast over the country. We venture to say that John will win out this time, anyway.

The Brattleboro minister who, on resigning, declared that he had been treated with courtesy and consideration by some members of his congregation, but that for others he had supreme contempt, did not uncover his other cheek. It rather varies a monotony to have the militant spirit of the clergyman thus assert itself.

It is difficult to believe that ex-Gov. John D. Stewart of Middlebury, Vt., reached his 81st birthday on Saturday. He was executive of the state from 1870 to 1872, served for four terms in the national House of Representatives from 1880, and has always stood in the foremost rank of Vermont. Stewart has no other son, and John W. Stewart would have made a fine United States senator—Springfield, Mass., Republican.

THE GRASPING FOR FEES.

The fee graft in Vermont has been a free graft long enough. Governor Proctor did the right thing in releasing those four Brooklyn boys who came to Vermont with a promise of work and who were arrested as tramps before they could get to their destination. From the standpoint of policy, what sort of an inducement are we holding out to immigration from other states when our petty officers take advantage of a man's shortage of funds, as in this case, and thrust him into prison when the man is on his way to a place of employment? Shall Vermont suffer simply to allow some minion of the law to line his wallet with lucre? As the details of this shameful act come to light there is nothing but censure for the over-zealous officers. Granted for a moment, however, that the arresting officer was above the despicable greed and did not arrest the four men to get the fees, there must have been undue haste in dispatching them to the house of correction if they told anything like the tale which they told to Governor Proctor and which secured their release at once. Were the boys given a fair chance to present their case? The court should have been as im-

FROM THE TURKEY'S POINT OF VIEW.

A turkey sat on the topmost limb Of the very tallest tree. And, roosting high, indulged himself In this soliloquy:

"Perhaps this thing of giving thanks Is what it ought to be. But I am here to say it does Not look that way to me.

"They send a proclamation forth To say that thanks are due For all the blessings they have had. From every point of view.

"Some are but blessings in disguise— And so disguised, gadooks! The very sharpest eyes on earth Can't tell them by their looks.

"While not a few that come their way Are altogether good, For which they feel they must express Their lasting gratitude.

"They say the whole world ought to take One day, at least, to show Its heartfelt thankfulness because Such streams of blessings flow.

"And when they've published it abroad For all the world to see, By Jupiter, they grab an axe And make a break for me!

"I, who have never done a thing To any living man; And ask no more than that they let Me do the best I can."

"I fail to see where I come in With all those things that bless, And why I am in any way A form of thankfulness.

"And as to giving thanks myself— Well, really, I don't see Why I should give a single thank. Would you, if you were me?"
